Lily Pollen

Lily pollen from stamens of lilies can be a real problem and cause disastrous results.

Most importantly: DO NOT PUT WATER ON IT.

Instead, smother the pollen with talcum/baby powder, leave for a few days and vacuum off. The pollen will absorb into the powder. To avoid the chance of staining your carpet in the first place, cut out the stamens altogether from the lilies. Enjoy your lilies!

Nail Polish

For nail polish spills, blot carefully with absorbent paper, being careful not to push it further into the carpet.

DO NOT USE NAIL POLISH REMOVER: All this does is thin the nail polish down, which will then be absorbed so deep into the fibre, we may not be able to remove it.

Pet Puddles

Here's a DIY tip that could help!

With a towel, blot up as much as possible. Pour water onto area and use the towel to blot up. On the last rinse put 2 tablespoons of vinegar into 4 cups of water, pour on carpet and blot up. You can also place a fan on the area to speed up drying if required.

Food Spills

Scape up any solid matter with a knife.

Be careful not to push it further into the carpet. Blot up any liquid by placing a towel over the area and standing on it.

Pour a little soda water on to part of the stain and blot it up (or water). Repeat these steps on the rest of the stain. Most importantly do NOT rub... BLOT!

Red Wine

With a towel blot up as much of it as you can. Pour white wine onto area and Blot that up with a towel too. Then pour water onto the area to rinse out any excess wine, blot that up with a towel also. You may need to do this a few times. If you have a fan set that up on the area to speed up the drying.

Crayon Stains

A face all too familiar to us parents! Use baking soda on a damp cloth to rub crayon stains off smooth surfaces! Easy!
